

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates.

Radio frequencies are public property! Public property is owned by the people and for the people. The FCC does not represent the people, nor does their methodology of frequency allocation represent the will of the people. The red tape and requirements to start a low-watt FM station are a prime example of how the FCC is in bed with the corporate communication giants. They have made it extremely difficult to get a community station off the ground!!! This was suppose to be the FCCs answer to more diverse broadcasting, instead it is an example of their heavy-handedness and their desire to keep the little guy out, since they can't make any money off the little guy!!
